Michael Buckley !

Praise for Michael Buckley:

“...by seeking out the unexpected and going in from several different angles, Buckley triangulates a glimpse of a Tibet that is unique and original.”

Outpost magazine

Praise for Heartlands:

“This book contains all Buckley's best adventures over the years, a wealth of readable information: all that he sees, and his very well-informed observation and explanation. At times he made me laugh out loud. And he constantly worked the magic of a travel writer and had me wondering when I could pack.”

Isabel Losada, author

Michael Buckley is a premiere travel writer, published author, and researcher based in Vancouver, BC. His real home, however, is every far-flung corner of our planet. He specializes in travel to remote places, and is the author of seven books about the Himalayan and Southeast Asian areas (travel narratives and guidebooks) and a contributor to two other books. For the last fifteen years his major interest has been the Tibetan Plateau – which he has crisscrossed many times and written about extensively. This has enabled him to build up an enormous cache of research material. Buckley's feature articles have appeared in over 50 magazines, newspapers and other sources, including Time Asia, BBC Wildlife, The Globe & Mail, Nuvo, Outpost, and others.

Michael Buckley's books include:

Heartlands: Travels in the Tibetan World (Summersdale UK 2002) ! News: Heartlands is the Lowell Thomas Travel Journalism (Bronze Medal) winner for Best Travel Book presented by the SATW (Society of American Travel Writers) for 2003.

Travelers' Tales Tibet (contributor), (Travelers' Tale Publishing, San Francisco 2002)

Tibet Travel Adventure (ITMB Publishing, Vancouver 1999)

Travelers' Tales Thailand and India (contributor)
