E-Mails from the Edge

Lynne Everatt

E-Mails From the Edge straddles the worlds of business and popular fiction and is a novel with broad appeal that traces the career and burgeoning outrage of Constance Beaman, MBA, is a middling manager at a mega-multinational. The novel traces Constance's circuitous career as she is bounced among a kaleidoscopic assortment of bosses, squeezed through the merger ringer, shaken by excruciating exercises in team building and forced to exude passion against her will. Her journey culminates in a series of outrageous acts that mock the corporation's will to power and celebrate a passion that refuses to be compromised.

"(a) pitch-perfect portrait of a contemporary organization... (and) a novel of addictive hilarity..." Barbara Moses PhD

E-Mails from the Edge chronicles the corporate oxymoron – work life – with a smile and wink for anyone who's ever had a really bad day at the office. The stories debuted in the careers section of Canada's national newspaper The Globe & Mail over three years ago and have earned a wild response from readers– 'totally hilarious', "laugh out loud brilliant", and "witty, loopy, giddy, and so close to the truth I winced"

Lynne Everatt is a recovering MBA in Canada working to help others come to grips with their experiences in the corporate world.

This is her first book.
