

Author

Robin Pascoe

Robin Pascoe has sold close to 50,000 copies of her books, and has appeared on or been interviewed in numerous international publications including:

New York Times,
Wall Street Journal,
International Herald Tribune,
Washington Post,
San Francisco Chronicle,
Working Mother Magazine,
United Airlines in flight magazine,
Utne Reader,
Weekly Telegraph,
Korea Times,
Singapore Straits Times,
South China Morning Post,
Shanghai Daily,
Globe and Mail,
Vancouver Sun,
Ottawa Citizen,
and CNN

Traveling spouses, international Human Resource practitioners, relocation specialists, and international school communities worldwide applaud her pragmatic but sensitive approach to the joys and challenges of families and global relocation. She is deeply committed to helping families make the most of the sometimes challenging privilege of living, working, and raising a family abroad.

As the Expat Expert, Robin is well known both at home and abroad for her inspirational and informative articles, corporate presentations, and best-selling books. Since 1998, her popular website has served as an international meeting place, discussion group, and source of advice and information for hundreds of thousands of expats world-wide.

Robin's reputation as a funny, engaging and inspirational speaker was earned as a former diplomatic spouse (in postings to Bangkok, Taipei, Beijing and Seoul); raising two third culture kids, and by traveling globally from her home-base in Vancouver, Canada. Robin has now spoken in over twenty countries, invited by corporate groups from Shanghai to Johannesburg, to educate businesses about the needs of the expatriate family. Robin has become the go-to expert for corporations interested in understanding the needs of expats and their families and making recommendations for family-friendly relocation policies.

Robin's profession as a journalist makes her ideally suited to reporting on the trends in expatriate experience. She writes regularly for expatriate newspapers, magazines and web sites.